A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A FIRST-SHIFT PRODUCTION WORKER

As a Production Worker, you are integral to the manufacturing of the quality products that we are known for. You process parts for the next department, inspect the quality of the parts, and communicate about process improvements. With attention to detail, you program and load machinery per the production documentation, verifying that everything is correct and up to quality standards before passing it on to the next process.

Always attentive to safety, you eliminate any unsafe conditions or practices that you have authority over. You are also passionate about quality. Nothing gets by you if it is not up to our safety standards--whether the issue was caused at your station or before. You take pride in your work and keep your workspace clean and orderly. As one of the people behind WeatherBarr's reputation for quality, you feel good about the great job you do!
